Heavy Majority Recorded in Favor of Measure on First Reading.

London, Jan. 6, ::55 p. m.-Amid scenes of wild enthusiasm, the house of commons tonight passed the first reading of the government bill for compulsory military service by decisive vote of 403 to 105. The vote came shortly before mid-night, with the galleries again packed, every seat on the floor of the house occupied, the ministerial benches filled and an air of eager expectancy prevailing. The events of the day had increased the tension to a high pitch, notably the action of the labor congress and the quick sequel of the retirement of three labor members of Throughout these developments outside of parliament, the debate in the house had forged steadily ahead but had been left largely to lesser figures. It was reserved for A. J. Balfour, first lord of the admiralty, to close the debate in behalf of the government, and he did it in a persuasivo appeal. "Do not let us give a false the lagging spirits of the advocates of the bill and turned the tire of adversity which had been running steadinly against the measure through the debate and the ouside events of the Tremendous Outburst.

Then came the vote, which was taken amid eager interest as the members filed before the tellers and peers crowded to their galleries to witness the final result. The announcement of the figures was received with a tremendous outburst of cheering which rang through the chamber and was echoed to the waiting crowds outside. which he will assume next Tuesday their handkerchiefs and the air the laws regulating doctors, dentists was rent with white papers flung in and druggists. triumph at the government's success.

present occasion and the present war An appeal to the country and a break upon both the coalition government and the Labor party are contingencies of the near future and while the government has secured what in ordinary circumstances would be regarded as a satisfactory majority, 298 for its bill, the defection of a large section of the Labor party, with the loss of four members of the government admittedly places the govern ment in a critical position and many doubts are expressed that it will succeed in weathering the storm.

No cabinet council has yet been summoned and a majority of the members of the house of commons are adverse to a general election, but an appeal to the country may come in elther of two ways. First, the house of lords could, without the consent of the government, bring the life of the parliament to an end by simply declining to proceed with the parliament and registration bill which prolongs the life of parliament eight months On the other hand, it may still be found that Reginald McKenna, chancellor of the exchequer, and Walter Runciman, president of the board of trade, are quitting the cabinet though nothing yet is known of their position in which case it would not be improbable that the government would seek an exit from its difficulties by resigning and appealing to the country.
